From Malacañang to House of Arroyos?

Pulse Asia: 46 percent disapprove of her work

THERE ARE MORE FILIPINOS who distrust President Macapagal-Arroyo and disapprove of her performance than those who have positive opinions about her, a Pulse Asia survey showed.

Ms. Arroyo's ratings in May remained essentially the same compared to those in February given the latest survey's margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Of the 1,200 adults interviewed by Pulse Asia from May 4 to 17, 46 percent had little or no trust in Ms. Arroyo, 25 percent had much trust and 27 percent were undecided on the matter.

At the same time, 46 percent of the respondents disapproved of Ms. Arroyo's performance in the three months preceding the survey, 38 percent approved and 27 percent were undecided.

Ms. Arroyo, however, was able to maintain the same percentage of people who trusted her and approved of her performance.

The slight decline in the number of undecided respondents increased the number of people who disapproved her.

A Pulse Asia survey conducted in February showed that 45

Gonzalez gets 'less strenuous' Palace job

By Christian Y. Eguerra

HE DIDN'T WANT TO LEAVE too soon, but Justice Secretary Real Gonzalez has been moved to what Malacañang claimed was a "less strenuous" job, just the same.

Gonzalez, one of President Macapagal-Arroyo's most loyal lieutenants, was appointed as the new chief presidential legal counsel, replacing Jesus Duran, effective June 4. Loretta Figarola, deputy presidential spokesperson, said yesterday.

Replacing Gonzalez's place in an acting capacity were Solicitor General Agustin Gonzales, according to Figarola.

Gonzalez said he would have wanted to stay on "for a few more months" to handle the numerous cases involving

RAIN OR SHINE, MULTISECTORED groups yesterday said nothing would stop them from pushing through with tomorrow's rallies in Manila, Iloilo and other cities against a House resolution calling for a constitutional assembly (Con-ass) to amend the Constitution.

Manila Mayor Jejomar Binay said talk of rain and deterioration of roads would not discourage thousands who were expected to join the 5 p.m. rally on Ayala Avenue and Plaza de Roma in protest of Charter change, which they claimed would allow President Macapagal-Arroyo to extend his term.

Ex-reb keeps up fight with guitar, songs

AN AGRIANMAN REFORM ADVOCATE then and now, Francis Arago built first a gun and then a guitar to fight against landlessness.

Arago composed a song of a farmer's tale called "Tan" in the 1980s, a similarly stirring piece that would be repeatedly sung by activists three decades after. The song is about a poor farmer named Tan whose land was grabbed by a landlord.

RECIFE, BRAZIL—WITH 17 bodies pulled so far from the Atlantic Ocean near the site of the midweek's crash of an Air France plane, the mystery that has riddled the world—what happened to the 208-ton jumbo—became a fight against time and currents to salvage rapidly disappearing evidence.

British and French military ships have in doubt they have located the wreckage of the Airbus A330-300.

Palace allies seek dialogue with Church leaders

By Gil C. Cabanoguin and Leticia B. Salome

PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-ARROYO's allies are seeking a dialogue with religious leaders in a bid to defuse opposition to a move to amend the Constitution without the Senate's participation.

"Talking to bishops and religious leaders is the best way to penetrate the masses and enlighten them on the real issue," Nueva Ecija Rep. Rodolfo Antonio said as opposition groups mobilized to protest against Charter change (Char-chang) beginning Wednesday.

Unlike the senators and other political-oriented groups, Antonio said, the Catholic Church and other religious organizations have no stake in the 2019 elections and would have a more sober view.

Antonio expressed confidence that some senators would join the House in opposing a Con-ass, especially if the Supreme

SHIFT IN STRATEGY RP swine flu cases jump to 46

By Dona Z. Pascual

THE NUMBER OF CONFIRMED INFLUENZA A(H1N1) or swine flu cases has jumped to 46 as health officials yesterday revealed the virus was being transmitted faster than they could rescue infected people and those they had been in contact with.

Faced with the difficulty of tracking down all potential cases, officials of the Department of Health (DOH) said they were now shifting their strategy from containment to mitigation.

The new cases included four more students from De La Salle University-Tali in Manila—including the case of a confirmed case in their college in semi-weekly, for the first time, a student from Far Eastern University-East Asia College in Manila.

The other eight new confirmed cases have recently been to the United States, Japan and Canada, where outbreaks have occurred.

"We have reached 46 and although it's a big number we are fortunate that all of these are just mild cases which are consistent with most of the cases of A(H1N1) we are seeing in other affected countries," Drages said in a news conference.

Before the number of cases took a double-digit leap at the weekend, the Philippines had been tagged by the

Pals rap cops' probe of farm leader's slay

By Nikita Diaz

COLLEAGUES OF REBAYO "BO BOBO" PINOY, the slain farmer leader from Samar, Bulidians, yesterday called on the police to conduct a more thorough investigation of the killing, as they held the Arroyo administration accountable for his death.

"There should be a deeper investigation into the killing of Bo Bobo. We are not satisfied by the investigation team to conduct due cause check," said lawyer Niom Garcia of Bulidians, which provides free legal assistance to many small farmers.

At a press conference, Garcia said the result of the investigation was "legally important to the farmers," particularly the then-acting Bulidians ng mga Lungsodang Inapayahan (Bulidians), the group which Pinoy formed as national vice president.

Garcia was one of the leaders of a march on Manila from Bulidians in 2007 to highlight the plight of Bulidians farmers who were being evicted out of their land.

The work which ended in Marikina was organized by the farmers' unioning and back after Jose Milagro Corp., which had bought the property from the company that tried to get the farmers out, handed the land back to them.

Garcia said he also believed the result of the investigation would impact on the implementation of the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program extension with reforms (CARPER) bill, which was passed by the House of Representatives last Thursday, the day before Pinoy was assassinated in Samar.

Pinoyn said to a press statement that the assassination of the "assassination of a national peaceleader" should be avoided.

"We hold this solemn responsibility for this ongoing violent campaign against farmer-leaders and other human rights activists," Pinoyn said.

As stated for an agreement by the last Sunday issue of Bulidians, another legal group, Bulidians, said speaking on the street by police of suspect Alvin Tanungay and the supposed mother to the killing of Pinoy.

The report, however, mentions without names and a police report, raised the possibility that Pinoy killing may have been connected to his "active advocacy" not just for Bulidians but for other farmers fighting for land under CARPER.

Killing of Pinoy judges, lawyers hit

A MEMBER OF AN INTERNATIONAL MOVIE has accompanied the Philippine government summons all forms of attacks against lawyers and judges, and promote all persecution "with agency and force." In Samaritan, a director of the International Association of Trial Lawyers (IATL) who visited the Philippines last year to investigate the murder of judges and lawyers in the country, presented the summit to judges before the 17th Congress of the International Association of Trial Lawyers (IATL) in Hanoi, Vietnam.

During the summit, speakers discussed the filing of fabricated charges against lawyers and attacks by government prosecutors and other forms of harassment, according to human rights lawyer Edna Gloria, who is attending the summit.

The IATL is an association of democratic lawyers, judges, prosecutors, law students and law students from some 100 countries. The 17th congress, which is the theme "Law and Justice in the Context of Globalization: For peace, development and independence of judicial systems," is held in Hanoi.

"The IATL strongly called on the active judiciary to address the underlying root causes of the institutionalized attacks on lawyers and to bring to those attacks to investigating the serious allegations that 30 civil servants have been involved in the killing of Pinoy," Gloria, an officer of the National Union of People's Lawyers (NUPL), said in a statement to the summit. How do you take the challenge of Corporate Social Responsibility and the crisis?

The current economic crisis has made the conduct of business crucial today. To address this, this year's Corporate Social Responsibility Expo takes on the challenge of CSR in a Unique Business Context. Now, more than ever, we need to step up efforts that will help businesses weather financial crises and become more productive members of society. CSR Expo 2009 features experts from leading multinational and local companies, academics and civil society partners, an exhibit of model CSR programs, and a trade fair of products from various small enterprises.

The 3-day CSR Expo 2009 (July 9 and 10) will feature experts from leading multinational and local companies, academics and civil society partners, and an exhibition of model CSR programs, a trade fair of products and services from small enterprises, and lectures on developing entrepreneurial skills.

A pre-event on July 8 will be the exclusive joint general assembly of the Management Association of the Philippines and the League of Corporate Foundations highlighted by the Awarding of the Philippine CSR Leadership Challenge.

Negros ruins picked among world's 12 most fascinating things

By Carla P. Gomez
Reporter/Columnist

BAKELAND CITY—A BUNGLE WITH over 2.5 million worldwide visitors a month has named The Ruins in Talib City, Negros Occidental as among the 12 of the world's most fascinating ruins.

Online at www.12.com, a blog that "features, old, strange and bizarre things" in the world, ranked the Ruins as the 12th place among the world's most fascinating ruins.

The blog described the Ruins as "a museum built by a major magazine on the ruins of the last century that was never, but never, was destroyed in the Second World War in order to prevent Japanese forces from using it."

The US Armed Forces in the Pacific (USARPAC) located and marked the ruins and Filipinos quickly learned it to keep it from falling into Japanese hands, according to the blog.

The Ruins, built in the early 1900s by major planner William Lindholm (1865-1941), is now a tourist attraction run by his great-grandson Raymond Lindholm.

Lindholm said he did not know how The Ruins got included in the list or why not, but he was sure it was good for the public. "It just keeps the site on the map and makes it known," he said.

While he admitted that the Filipinos generally are not as interested in the ruins as he is, he said he was proud to see the ruins listed in the book.

Supporting the Delta line of business, Lindholm said that the Delta line has been around since 1900. "We're still here, still here, still here," he said. "We're still here, still here, still here."

K. Rongge torturer; Babies killed so they won't seek revenge

PHILIPINO, CAMBODIA

The Khmer Rouge regime of the 1970s killed babies and children—sometimes by holding their heads up and smothering their heads against stone, as they would not seek revenge later in life, the group's leaders said yesterday.

Saying Gen. Kim, alias Duch, commanded the Khmer Rouge's notorious 3-21 prison, where as many as 16,000 men, women and children are believed to have been tortured before being sent to their deaths.

Duch, 46, is being tried by a 17-member tribunal set up for crimes against humanity, war crimes, genocide and crimes against humanity. He is accused of ordering the 1975-79 execution of 17,000 babies and children, including babies and children.

"I am extremely repulsed, like he is killing babies, young children and teenagers," Duch told his audience, personally witnessing if he had personally ordered such killings.

He ordered to photograph the babies being smothered against the stone. I didn't know it was for him, but after seeing the photographs I realized that it had happened," Duch said.

"I was then, as you can see, in the prison. I do not know that because this was made up responsibility."

Duch was shown the pictures in February 2008 when he was taken to a general court of law and one of the country's notorious "killing fields" as part of an investigation process that involved taking the accused to the crime scene.

Duch remained a Khmer Rouge ally on his death row.

"There is no pain to keep him, and they might be revenge on me," which he said was not his idea but the regime's former defense minister, Son Sen.

N. Korea jails US journalists for 12 years in labor prison

SEOUL—NORTH KOREA MONDAY SENTENCED two US women journalists to 12 years in a labor camp for illegal entry, further fueling tensions with Washington after testing a nuclear bomb last month.

The US State Department said it is "deeply concerned" at the sentences on Laura Ling and Euna Lee and is urging all post-1948 changes to law there.

A Friday Wall "condemned the gross crime they committed against the Korean nation and their illegal border crossing," the official Korean Central News Agency said without specifying the crime.

The Central Coast "imprisoned each of them to 12 years of labor through labor."

Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said Tuesday she charged against the past war American and they should be allowed to return home.

Clinton also said the United States is considering putting North Korea back on its international blacklist.

Lee, a North Korea expert at Reuters, is being held in a labor camp.

"They are not being held in a labor camp in the United States that the North is taking the case only and not being held," Lee said.

"It also shows the North's intention to bring the United States to the United Nations," Lee said.

Disaffection dominates EU Parliament vote

BRUSSELS

BRUSSELS—EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT VOTERS on Monday rejected a proposal to create a global economic crisis response mechanism in the European Parliament on Monday, as more than 27 countries voted in favor of the proposal.

The vote was a reversal from last April 45 percent of about 500 euro zone right-wing members, reflecting what analysts saw as the European Union's growing disaffection, as it faces the crisis.

Members were identifying as far-right and rejecting support for the European Parliament.

Without investment, Shell chief warns of spike in oil prices

ALINA LUMIPUN, MANILA—Oil prices will spike in the future without investment in the sector to meet demand, says the global economy minister, said Shell Chief Executive Officer Sirine van der Pijl on Monday.

Despite the current economic crisis, he said demand was projected to double over the next 10 years, growing from 85 billion to 170 billion barrels a day.

“The oil and gas industry must supply all this additional demand,” he said, “or the next price spike is in the making.” He said more than 1,600 oil and gas fields are being discovered each year, but only 100 are being developed.

“This is a big challenge to us as a high investor [now] and to meet the lower construction prices,” he said, adding that the industry must invest in new oil and gas fields to meet the demand.

After spending $147 billion last year, oil prices plunged last year to $22 last year, which delayed or halted new oil exploration and refining projects. Now that, crude oil has climbed back to $40, it is a sign of hope of economic recovery and production cuts by OPEC.

He said the world needs to invest in new oil and gas fields to meet the demand. “We need to invest in oil and gas fields to meet the demand,” he said, adding that the industry must invest in new oil and gas fields to meet the demand.

“Given though there is a demand for oil, we need to make the investment that demand will come back,” he said. “This is a long-term industry. We don’t stop spending because there is a crisis.” AP
